Subject: Urgent - accidental injection of topical serum

Hi I am wondering if your Doctor can help me with my urgent situation.

My name is SC

Date of birth 21/7/19

Last Tuesday I accidently injected a vial of Odorylan hyurleronic acid ampoules into my face in different areas. I made 7-10 deeper injections on the sides of my face and some shallow mesotherapy injections on my nasolabial folds.

The next day I had high fever and couldn't get out of bed and swelling/redness but after that day the fever went away.

Now I am left with hard itchy painful lumps and the skin on top is reddish purple.

I tried to remove some of the product myself and was able to get some of it out by trying both 18 and 21 gauge needles and pressing hard. But the deeper deposits won't come out. I think I might need minor surgery or a small incision for it to come out.

I went to A&E and contacted some dermatologists but no one is wanting to help me remove the product.

I have attached photos and the information of the product. The red marks on my face is the result of me trying to squeeze the product out. Also please note I tried hyleronidaise to see if it would help but it had no effect.

I hope youre able to help because it's very painful, I can constantly feel it in my face it feels like it's not supposed to be there it's burning and tingling and itching and my whole face had become more swollen

Thank you

Note: Highlights in red are made by Dr Bela